Upon completion of two thousand eighty practice hours, a physician assistant may practice in the primary care areas of family medicine, general internal medicine, general pediatrics, geriatrics, and acute care without a collaborative agreement.

Upon completion of two thousand eighty practice hours, a physician assistant may work in a rural health emergency department without a collaborative agreement.

A physician assistant, practicing in an area outside the primary care areas of family medicine, general internal medicine, general pediatrics, geriatrics, obstetrics and gynecology, and acute care, must enter into a collaborative agreement with the physician assistant's employing health care facility, rather than with a physician or another physician assistant, for so long as the physician assistant is working in those practice areas. The degree of collaboration found within the collaborative agreement with the employing health care facility must be determined at the practice level by the employing health care facility, group, hospital service, and the credentialing and privileging systems of the employing health care facility. The collaborative agreement must be kept on file at the practice site and be provided to the board upon request. "
