5 22-1-2. Terms used in this title mean:

6 (1) If applied to the intent with which an act is done or omitted:

7 (a) The words, "malice, maliciously," and all derivatives thereof import a wish 8 to intentionally vex, annoy, or injure another person, established either by 9 proof or presumption of law;

10 (b) The words, "intent, intentionally," and all derivatives thereof, import a 11 specific design to cause a certain result or, if the material part of a charge 12 is the violation of a prohibition against conduct of a certain nature, 13 regardless of what the offender intends to accomplish thereby, a specific 14 design to engage in conduct of that nature;

15 (c) The words, "knowledge, knowingly," and all derivatives thereof, import only 16 a knowledge that the facts exist which bring the act or omission within the 17 provisions of any statute. A person has knowledge if that person is aware 18 that the facts exist which bring the act or omission within the provisions of 19 any statute. Knowledge of the unlawfulness of such act or omission is not 20 required;

21 (d) The words, "reckless, recklessly," and all derivatives thereof, import a 22 conscious and unjustifiable disregard of a substantial risk that the offender's 23 conduct may cause a certain result or may be of a certain nature. A person

6 recklessness suffices to establish an element of the offense, then 7 knowledge, intent or malice also constitutes sufficient culpability for such 8 element. If knowledge suffices to establish an element of an offense, then
